

LONDON ADOPTS AUTO-MOBILE MAIL CARTS.

Postal Authorities Are Using Them to Facilitate the Rapid Distribution of Mails in the Outlying Districts.

London's Automobile Mail Carts.

The postal authorities of the metropolis are testing them. They may be adopted for the distribution of city mail to the branch post offices.

(Special Correspondence of the Journal.)

London, June 24.—The General Post Office automobile mail carts are being subjected to a severe test by the postal authorities of this city and it is believed that they will be put in general use. Those who have watched the new vehicle say they are faster than any that have yet been tried. Their appearance is up to date in every way.

Imagine a wagon, not unlike the mail wagons of New York with an immense hood over the driver's seat, and back of it another case of handsomely polished wood, which is used for the supplementary mail.

Affixed to the dashboard is a large gong which gives a clear note of warning as the motorman steers his wagon in and out among the great mass of vehicles of all sorts that are always to be found on a London street.

The seat is the entire width of the cart, which is of course four wheeled, and the motor man supplies on with the power by means of a small lever not unlike the levers on the trolleys in Greater New York. He works this with his right hand and a brake with his left.

The front wheels of the wagon are small enough to swing under the body of the vehicle. They work on a pivot and the wagon can be turned almost in its own length. It is the facility with which these wagons can be sent around a corner or through a winding lane between the lines of other wagons and drays that makes the new motor cart valuable.

It is believed their use will greatly increase the efficiency of the London City delivery.

SEE HERE, LOPEZ, GIVE UP THAT KEY

Senorita Garcia Is Looking for You and a Mexican Mine.

Purchase you may see the mysterious Lopez. He is a dark man with a key. Seize him! Then wire direct to the Senorita Evangelina Garcia. A price will be paid for that key.

But, above all, don't be rash. Merely because the man is dark and has a key is no license to seize the next one. For instance, a dark man with a key might be a colored locksmith or the janitor of a Thompson street flat. They want to do all Senorita Garcia desires Lopez, and no one else.

The key in question is not the iron implement of commerce. It won't do to open a Yale lock or a burglar-proof safe. The only thing in the wide, wide world that will open, says the senorita, is a gold mine in Mexico. Ordinarily a shovel would do this, but the trouble here is that, without the key, they can't find the mine.

At the moment, the senorita is staying at the Broadway Central. Yesterday she advertised for the whereabouts of Senor Lopez, and a few dozen persons called upon her to ask why. One was a Journal reporter.

The senorita is of Spanish descent, lives in Boston, and was born in Richmond, Va. She is dark, with slumberous eyes.

"It is a mine. It is somewhere in the State of Jalisco, Mexico. My great-grandfather, Emanuel Garcia, no, he is not related to the cigar man—my great-grandfather came here at the beginning of the century. With him was Lopez, great-grandfather of the Lopez I seek.

"In Mexico they found the mine. It was fabulously rich. But then came the war in Mexico. They feared to work and they feared each other. What should they do? Ah! Ah! One writes out a code; the other a key. The key is the code to the mine. Without both together, the mine shall not be found.

"My great-grandfather took the code; Lopez took the key. They parted. After a while they died. But the code has been handed down year after year in our family. I now have it. Lopez, the great-grandchild, he has the key. Together we shall be rich as you wish. I am trying to find Lopez.

"The last I have heard of him he was in New York. That was two years ago. We advertised in the South, but we have not found him. It was a Texas paper, I think.

"The mine is next to the famous Anita mine. You know about it? The Spanish owner would let up one when all the men were below. Naturally, they died. They have not been seen since at any rate. That was in 1810.

"I am going to marry to No. 11 Wall street to see about the mine. Mr. Phil, from Mexico, will arrive then. No, I do not know Mr. Hook. Was his name mentioned? He was not in the mine, I am sure.

"Such a tale is, of course, calculated to enrich the realm of romantic fiction, making the reading for Sundays off. But the senorita has hopes.

However, don't seize the next dark man with a key. Tardy explanation is a poor balm for an impulsive upper end, and at the best a whole bunch of keys is not to be compared with peace and a normal nose.

He returned the compliment. The obsequious person who seeks fees from travelers by pretending to take them for noblemen occasionally meets one who fails to fall into his trap. An English gentleman of somewhat imposing personal appearance had a door opened for him at the Paris opera house an overture, or usher, who bowed low. "The door is open, please!" The Englishman glanced affably at him, and out extending the expected fee, said: "Thank you very much, please."—London Tiv Bits.

SPITE FENCE WAR RAGING IN ORANGE.

Woman Objects to Windows in a New House Opposite Her Own.

A spite fence fight is on between two neighbors in New Street, Orange, which has now reached a point where nothing will settle the trouble but the law.

The fence was built by Mrs. Mary Mahon, who conducts a cafe at No. 53 New street, and just four inches from this board is the new house of Captain Gottlieb Stahl, a saloon keeper.

Mrs. Mahon, after seeing the architect's plans of Stahl's new house, came to the conclusion that when completed the windows in the new house would be directly opposite those of hers, so she decided to erect a fence to shut out sightseers. This task was finished by the time Stahl's house was completed, and now Stahl is meditating how he can get his house painted, as the smallest child could not get between the house and fence.

He will try to find redress by applying to the Board of Health on a plea that the "spite fence" is injurious to public health.

To automatically apply the air brakes and give a signal when a car axle or wheel breaks, a California's device consists of a vertical bar, suspended from the main air pipe, the lower end extending close to the track between the wheels to open a valve as soon as a break allows it to touch the rail.—Exchange.

WASH DRESS FABRICS

Rapid Progress Toward Perfection.

Some of the high-class products of home mills are superior in style, texture, color, harmony and finish to the best that foreign mills turn out. For many years the skill of French, Scotch and English artisans was acknowledged to be superior to that possessed by their competitors in America. This season, for the first time in history, many of the leaders in the trade admit that imported wash goods are fairly outdone in beauty and general artistic excellence by the home product. The day has gone when the word "imported," as applied to madras cloths, Oxford, chevrons, gingham, chailles, dimities, organdies, lawns and the many strictly warm-weather woven-pattern fabrics, casts a spell over retail buyer or final purchaser.—Dry Goods Economist.

As proofs of above

Inspect the Following

PINEAPPLE ZEPHYRS Sheer as Lawn—exquisite colors.... .19 Nothing equalling them in Foreign Goods can be bought under 45 cents.

FINE MADRAS GINGHAMS 32 Inch—100 styles..... 8% Identical with the Foreign at 10 cents.

SILK FINISH CHAMBRAYS All the fancy shades..... 7 Look and wear as well as French at 10.

BLACK HENRIETTA SATTEENS Soft wool finish—deep jet black—Best aniline dyes—unaffected by perspiration, sun or salt air—in fact they are even acid proof..... .12 1/2 The French at 25 cents are of very inferior dye—often growing ruddy on the shelves.

FOULARD BATISTES Navy, National and Marine Blue—white figures—silk styles.... .12 1/2 Placed side by side with the imported at double the price 'tis almost impossible to find a difference.

Blue and White Foulard Lawns—"Chaille" styles, but not "Chaille" price.....
